

Top 5 PokéStops in Toronto

Help Mom and Dad plan your Toronto vacation using Pokémon GO as your travel guide. Don't think they'll be convinced? Consider playing as a family; walk around together hunting Pokémon, or play as rivals on separate devices and see who can catch 'em all first.

Explore the city and capture as many Pokémon as you can by visiting these top 5 PokéStops in Toronto.

Nathan Phillips Square

Check out the reflecting pool at Nathan Phillips Square, which apparently spawns Polywhirl and Seadra. Then, don't forget to take some selfies by the huge 3D Toronto sign. It's a must-do around here.

Jack Layton Ferry Terminal

For more water Pokémon, head to the Toronto Islands. Catch the ferry at Jack Layton Ferry Terminal. The terminal is one of the most popular spots for Poké masters and especially if you want to catch a Dragonite.

CN Tower

The CN Tower is the tallest and most well known landmark in the city so no trip is complete without a visit to the top. Plus, you'll add to your Pokédex since plenty of lure parties happen here and it's also a popular Gym for trainers.

Toronto Eaton Centre

The Eaton Centre is home to 250+ stores so it's a great spot to pick up new kicks or some clothes. It also has lots of PokéStops, lures and Pokémon. The most common sightings are of Drowsee and Gastly.

Queen's Park

Take a walk through Queen's Park on your way to the Royal Ontario Museum (where you'll find dinosaurs and more PokéStops). It's one of the prettiest places in the city plus, you'll have all this open space to throw Poké Balls and roam around long enough to hatch a 5-km egg.

Some extra tips for Pokémon Trainers

Catch more Pokémon by riding the streetcar. All of Toronto's streetcar lines pass through a dozen PokéStops. That means you'll enjoy hunting without running out of Poké Balls.

As you know, water-based Pokémon appear near bodies of water. So obviously, you'll want to head to Lake Ontario or anywhere near Harbourfront.

For safety's sake, pay attention to your surroundings, follow signs for private property and barriers designed to keep you away from danger at attractions like The Toronto Zoo.

Be safe when playing
Pokémon GO!